JEFFERIES TO HOST 2017 GLOBAL INDUSTRIALS CONFERENCE AUGUST 7-9 IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, August 1, 2017 – Jefferies today announced that it will host its 2017 Global Industrials Conference August 7-9 in New York.

The annual conference will feature an extensive range of global public and private companies across the Aerospace/Defense, Aviation/Transportation, Automotive/Auto Aftermarket, Building Products/Materials, Business Services, Chemicals, Diversified Industrials, Emerging/Sustainable Technologies, Engineering/Construction, Industrial Services, Machinery, Materials, Paper/Packaging, Steel/Metals/Mining and other related sectors.

This industry-leading global gathering of company executives, as well as institutional, private equity and venture capital investors, will address investment themes and opportunities, as well as discuss key drivers of the global Industrials sector. The three-day conference is comprised of company presentations, thematic panel discussions and keynote speakers, with company management teams able to participate in 1x1 and small group meetings with investors.

Senator Alfonse M. D'Amato, Managing Director of Park Strategies, LLC and former US Senator 1981-1999, will be the conference keynote speaker.

Chris Kanoff and David Bradley, Global Co-Heads of Industrials Investment Banking at Jefferies, noted, "Our conference, which is one of the largest events dedicated to the industrials sector, brings together global industry leaders, emerging high growth companies, and key institutional investors. This annual conference confirms Jefferies' commitment to this important sector and to creating valuable opportunities for our clients."

As part of the firm's commitment to the industrials sector, Jefferies has 115 industrials-focused investment bankers in New York, Boston, Chicago, Los Angeles, Toronto, Washington D.C., London and Hong Kong. Additionally, Jefferies has 30 senior equity research analysts covering approximately 400 industrials companies globally.
